

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910785020203321
Autore	Ninkovich Frank A. <1944->
Titolo	Global dawn [[electronic resource]] : the cultural foundation of American internationalism, 1865-1890 // Frank Ninkovich
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Cambridge, Mass., : Harvard University Press, c2009
ISBN	0-674-05437-7
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (441 p.)
Classificazione	NK 4600
Disciplina	973.7
Soggetti	Internationalism - History - 19th century National characteristics, American - History - 19th century United States Foreign relations 1865-1898 United States Civilization 1865-1918 United States Race relations History 19th century
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Bibliographic Level Mode of Issuance: Monograph
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Introduction: Culture and causality -- A global civilization -- Culture, commerce, and diplomacy : creating an international identity -- Europe I : republican mirages -- Europe II : barbarian survivals -- The one and the many : race, culture, and civilization -- The promise of local equality : assimilating African- Americans, Chinese, and Native Americans -- Beyond Orientalism : explaining other worlds -- Empire and civilization -- International politics -- The future of international relations -- Conclusion: Culture as capability.
Sommario/riassunto	Why did the United States become a global power? Frank Ninkovich shows that a cultural predisposition for thinking in global terms blossomed in the late nineteenth century, making possible the rise to world power as American liberals of the time took a wide-ranging interest in the world. Of little practical significance during a period when isolationism reigned supreme in U.S. foreign policy, this rich body of thought would become the cultural foundation of twentieth-century American internationalism.