

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910785326103321
Autore	Wariboko Nimi <1962->
Titolo	Ethics and time [[electronic resource]] : ethos of temporal orientation in politics and religion of the Niger Delta // Nimi Wariboko
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Lanham, MD, : Lexington Books, c2010
ISBN	1-282-92200-9 9786612922008 0-7391-5030-8
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (193 p.)
Disciplina	241
Soggetti	Christian ethics Social ethics - Nigeria - Niger River Delta Time - Moral and ethical aspects - Nigeria - Niger River Delta Kalabari (African people) - Social life and customs
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Contents; Preface; Chapter 1. Creating Time Gaps; Chapter 2. Chiefs: Subjects to Freedom; Chapter 3. Imagination: Source of Self and Religion; Chapter 4. Apocalypticism: The Struggle for a Relevant Future; Chapter 5. Temporal Orientation and Philosophy of History; Chapter 6. The Virtue of Time; Chapter 7. Kairos and Economic Development; Bibliography; Acknowledgments; Index
Sommario/riassunto	Ethics and Time investigates how temporal orientation influence social-ethics. Re-conceptualizing temporal orientation as the production of new temporalities that allow humans to manifest their potentialities and creatively resist obstacles that impede their flourishing, it shows how a social group's orientation to time frames, informs, and drives its politics and religion. It uses an African culture as a practical case study to concretely illustrate the form and dynamics of the interconnections.