

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910786396303321
Autore	Packard Josh
Titolo	The emerging church : religion at the margins // Josh Packard
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Boulder, Colorado : , : FirstForumPress, , 2012 ©2012
ISBN	1-935049-76-3
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (210 p.)
Collana	Religion in politics and society The emerging church
Disciplina	270.8/3
Soggetti	Non-institutional churches Emerging church movement Christianity - 21st century Church renewal Postmodernism - Religious aspects - Christianity
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Resisting success -- Developing hyperlocal congregations -- Sustaining permanently unsettled lives -- Getting things done -- The appeal of the emerging church -- Sustaining faith, sustaining resistance.
Sommario/riassunto	If a church resists rules, rituals, and dogma, what holds it together? Josh Packard explores the inner workings of the Emerging Church, revealing how a movement that rejects organizational trappings and embraces a do-it-yourself ethic has managed to create a distinctive place for itself at the margins of mainstream Christianity. Packard demystifies the beliefs and operations of the loosely connected Emerging Church congregations that developed in direct response to the heavily bureaucratic megachurches. While acknowledging the challenges inherent in sustaining such a movement, he shows that the church succeeds not despite its anti-institutional approach, but because of it. His work offers new insights into the interplay of culture, organizations, and doctrine in today's religious landscape.