

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910787679503321
Autore	Flint John
Titolo	Bigotry, Football and Scotland [[electronic resource]] : Perspectives and Debates
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Edinburgh, : Edinburgh University Press, 2013
ISBN	0-7486-7038-6
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (241 p.)
Classificazione	HD 305
Altri autori (Persone)	KellyJohn
Disciplina	306.48309411
Soggetti	Christianity and politics -- Scotland -- History Religion and politics -- Scotland -- History Scotland -- Church history Scotland -- Religion Soccer -- Scotland Soccer - Social aspects - Scotland Soccer - Scotland Toleration - Scotland Social Sciences Recreation & Sports
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di contenuto	Title Page; Imprint; Contents; Acknowledgements; Contributors; Foreword; Introduction; 1 Football and Bigotry in Scotland; Rethinking Geographical, Historical and Social Contexts; 2 Outside the Hothouse: Perspectives Beyond the Old Firm; 3 Is Football Bigotry Confined to the West of Scotland? The Heart of Midlothian and Hibernian Rival; 4 'They Sing That Song': Football and Sectarianism in Glasgow during the 1920s and 1930s; 5 History and Memory in Scottish Football; 6 Scottish Enlightenment and the Sectarianism Civilising Offensive Constructing and Governing 'Sectarianism' and Football7 The New Sectarians; 8 Hegemonic Fandom and the Red Herring of Sectarianism; 9 England's Act, Scotland's Shame and the Limits of Law; 10 He's Back! But Scotland's National Demon Never Left: Revisiting Media Representations of Neil Le; Neglected Perspectives: Class, Gender and Football Supporters; 11 Women, Football and Communities: Gendered

Conceptualisations of 'Sectarianism'; 12 The Politics of Anti-sectarianism; 13 Sectarianism Sells - or Does It? A Celtic Supporter's View
14 Sectarianism and Scottish Football: A Rangers PerspectiveConclusions; 15 Necessary Debates and Future Research and Policy Imperatives; Index

Sommario/riassunto

In this collection, contributors from a range of disciplinary positions present the latest empirical research evidence and social theory to examine and debate fundamental issues about bigotry in Scottish football and society.
