

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910789711303321
Autore	Chan Steve
Titolo	Looking for balance [[electronic resource] ] : China, the United States, and power balancing in East Asia / / Steve Chan
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Stanford, California, : Stanford University Press, 2012
ISBN	0-8047-7847-7
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (298 p.)
Collana	Studies in Asian security
Disciplina	327.1/1205
Soggetti	Balance of power East Asia Foreign relations China China Foreign relations East Asia East Asia Foreign relations United States United States Foreign relations East Asia China Foreign relations United States United States Foreign relations China
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Balance of power, power balance, and balancing -- Looking for balancing : the non-occurrence of the expected -- The political economy of defense and regime strategy -- Balance-of-power expectations versus credible commitment -- Growth, trust, and historical comparisons -- Preferences, intentions, and multilateralism.
Sommario/riassunto	Debate surrounding "China's rise," and the prospects of its possible challenge to America's preeminence, has focused on two questions: whether the United States should "contain" or "engage" China; and whether the rise of Chinese power has inclined other East Asian states to "balance" against Beijing by alignment with the United States or ramping up their military expenditures. By drawing on alternative theoretic approaches—most especially "balance-of-threat" theory, political economic theory, and theories of regime survival and economic interdependence, Steve Chan is able to create an explanation of regional developments that differs widely from the traditional "strategic vision" of national interest. He concludes that China's primary aim is not to match U.S. military might or the foreign policy influence that flows from that power, and that its neighbors are not balancing against its rising power because, in today's guns-versus-butter fiscal reality, balancing policies would entail forfeiting possible gains that can accrue from cooperation, economic growth, and the application of GDP to nonmilitary ends. Instead, most East Asian countries have collectively pivoted to a strategy of elite legitimacy and regime survival based on economic performance.

---