

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910789960003321
Autore	MacCormick Neil
Titolo	Who's afraid of a European Constitution? [[electronic resource] /] / Neil MacCormick
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Exeter [England], : Andrews, 2012, c2005
ISBN	1-84540-361-4
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (115 p.)
Collana	Societas
Disciplina	341.2422
Soggetti	Constitutional law - European Union countries European Union countries Politics and government
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Originally published in the U.K. by Imprint Academic, 2005.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references.
Nota di contenuto	Cover; Contents; Front Matter; Title Page; Copyright Page; Abbreviations; Prologue; Body Matter; 1: A Democratic Deficit; 2: How Did the Draft Constitution Come About?; 3: What is in This Constitution?; 4: Does It Handle Human Rights Satisfactorily?; 5: Is the Constitution Too Long and Detailed?; 6: Do We Want a Constitution at All?; 7: Will the EU Become a Superstate if the Constitution is Adopted?; 8: Is European-scale Democracy Possible at All?; 9: Accountable Executives?; 10: What is Subsidiarity, and Why Does It Matter?; 11: Do the 'Regions' Get a Proper Place in Europe? 12: Fisheries - a Special ProblemBack Matter; References; Also Available
Sommario/riassunto	In this short but authoritative book, the nature and purpose of the European Constitution are explained by someone involved in its preparation. The author discusses how it was drafted, and tackles some much debated questions: whether it promises any enhancement of democracy in the EU, whether it implies that the EU is becoming a superstate, and whether it will strengthen the principle of subsidiarity and the protection of human rights.