Sommario/riassunto	Basato su recenti studi antropologici sul campo, questo libro descrive come le comunità europee dipendenti dal turismo siano state colpite dalla mercificazione della loro cultura. Il volume mostra modi vari e abili in cui gli individui e le comunità reagiscono e affrontano l'impatto di decenni di turismo di massa sulle loro vite e valori, gettando così nuova luce su questioni di identità, mantenimento dei confini e adeguamento culturale.
