

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910791350903321
Autore	Walton Whitney
Titolo	Internationalism, national identities, and study abroad [[electronic resource]] : France and the United States, 1890-1970 // Whitney Walton
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Stanford, Calif., : Stanford University Press, c2010
ISBN	0-8047-7338-6
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (280 p.)
Disciplina	370.116/20944
Soggetti	Educational exchanges - France - History Educational exchanges - United States - History Foreign study - France - History Foreign study - United States - History Internationalism - History National characteristics, American - History National characteristics, French - History France Relations United States United States Relations France
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Contents; List of Illustrations; Preface; Acknowledgments; Introduction; 1. The American Quest for Knowledge and the French Quest for Americans, 1870-1919; 2. Making Internationalists? The Albert Kahn Around-the-World Scholars' Reports on France and the United States, 1898- 1930; 3. Internationalism and the Junior Year Abroad: American Students in France in the 1920's and 1930's; 4. American Girls and French Jeunes Filles: Negotiating National Identities in Interwar France; 5. Warm Relations in a Cold War Atmosphere: Resurgence and Expansion of Study Abroad Following World War II 6. American National Identity and French Student Life: Politicization and Educational Reform in the 1960's 7. Sexuality, Gender, and National Identities in Twentieth-century Franco-American Exchanges; Abbreviations Used in Notes; Notes; Index

Sommario/riassunto

This book-the first to study educational travel between France and the United States throughout the twentieth century-asserts that study abroad is a valuable form of international relations based on the transformations that students' perceptions of themselves, their culture, and their host country undergo during their time abroad.
