

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910791494703321
Autore	Naso Ronald C. <1954->
Titolo	Hypocrisy unmasked [[electronic resource] ] : dissociation, shame, and the ethics of inauthenticity // Ronald C. Naso
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Lanham, Md., : Jason Aronson, c2010
ISBN	1-282-71355-8 9786612713552 0-7657-0679-2
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (411 p.)
Collana	New imago : series in theoretical, clinical, and applied psychoanalysis
Disciplina	155.9/2
Soggetti	Hypocrisy Integrity Authenticity (Philosophy)
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	The paradox of hypocrisy -- The call of conscience -- Perversion and moral reckoning -- Compromises of integrity -- Beneath the mask -- Youthful indiscretions -- Dissociation as self-deception -- Multiplicity and moral ambiguity.
Sommario/riassunto	Hypocrisy Unmasked aims more broadly to situate the phenomenon of hypocrisy within a postmodern framework, explaining it as a compromise fashioned by an embodied agent struggling to adapt and flourish amid moral ambiguity and uncertainty. Because morality ultimately is subjective, hypocrisy can no longer be conceptualized as an objective property of behavior or an empirical consequence divorced from the belief systems in which the agent is embedded. For this reason, this book argues that hypocrisy is neither inherently vicious nor virtuous. Instead, it is more usefully regarded as a condition