

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910791802303321
Autore	Greenhalgh Susan
Titolo	Cultivating global citizens [[electronic resource]] : population in the rise of China / / Susan Greenhalgh
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Cambridge, Mass., : Harvard University Press, 2010
ISBN	0-674-26405-3 0-674-05934-4
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (157 p.)
Collana	Cultivating global citizens. The Edwin O. Reischauer Lectures, 2008.
Disciplina	363.90951
Soggetti	Birth control - China Family size - Government policy - China China Population policy China Population China Social conditions China Politics and government
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	"The Edwin O. Reischauer Lectures, 2008"--P. [i].
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Frontmatter -- Contents -- Preface -- 1. From Population to Human Governance -- 2. Creating Global Persons and a Global Society -- 3. Strengthening China's Party- State and Place in the World -- Notes -- Index
Sommario/riassunto	In this wide-ranging and impressive work, Greenhalgh examines the evolution of China's population policy in the post-Mao era. She notes that during the past thirty years the role of the state in managing China's population and the bodies of its citizens has expanded enormously, involving efforts to promote women's health, foster higher population 'quality,' and even combat infertility. If we want to understand the challenges that China's rise presents to the rest of the world, we need to appreciate the centrality of all aspects of population management in the strategic thinking of Chinese elites. Cultivating Global Citizens provides a vital guide to this controversial terrain.