

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910791995203321
Autore	Stalley Phillip
Titolo	Foreign firms, investment, and environmental regulation in the People's Republic of China [[electronic resource] /] / Phillip Stalley
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Stanford, Calif., : Stanford University Press, 2010
ISBN	0-8047-7514-1
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (293 p.)
Disciplina	333.70951
Soggetti	Environmental policy - China Business enterprises, Foreign - Environmental aspects - China Investments, Foreign - Environmental aspects - China Environmental law - China
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (p. [233]-260) and index.
Nota di contenuto	To go green is glorious? : China, foreign investment, and environmental regulation -- The politics of industrial pollution in China : laws, institutions, and challenges -- Greening foreign investment : China's legal framework -- Patterns in implementation : strengthening enforcement -- Patterns in compliance : multinationals as agents of upward pressure -- Beyond multinationals : the environmental behavior of foreign firms in China.
Sommario/riassunto	To Go Green Is Glorious examines the impact of foreign investors, and the competition to attract them, on China's environmental regulation.