

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910792031203321
Autore	Dyhouse Carol
Titolo	Girl trouble : panic and progress in the history of young women // Carol Dyhouse
Pubbl/distr/stampa	London, England : , : Zed Books, , 2013 [London, England] : , : Bloomsbury Publishing, , 2021
ISBN	1-350-22039-6 1-78360-160-4 1-299-28369-1 1-78032-555-X
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (324 pages)
Disciplina	305.24220904
Soggetti	Girls - History Social & cultural history
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (pages 289-302) and index.
Nota di contenuto	White slavery and the seduction of innocents -- Unwomanly types: New Women, revolting daughters and rebel girls -- Brazen flappers, bright young things and 'Miss Modern' -- Good-time girls, baby dolls and teenage brides -- Coming of age in the 1960s: beat girls and dolly birds -- Taking liberties: panic over permissiveness and women's liberation -- Body anxieties, depressives, ladettes and living dolls: what happened to girl power? -- Looking back.
Sommario/riassunto	Obsession with the conduct of young women has permeated society for over a century, be it over flappers, beat girls, dolly birds or ladettes. Eminent social historian Carol Dyhouse examines what it really meant to be a girl growing up in the twentieth century. This is a sparkling, panoramic account of the ever-evolving opportunities and challenges for girls, the new ways they have been able to speak up for themselves, and the popular hysteria that has frequently accompanied their progress.