

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910793973503321
Titolo	Assessing Austrian economics . Vol. 24 // edited by Daniel J. D'Amico and Adam G. Martin
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Bingley, United Kingdom : , : Emerald Publishing Limited, , [2019] ©2019
ISBN	1-78973-937-3 1-78973-935-7
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (144 pages)
Collana	Advances in Austrian economics, , 1529-2134 ; ; volume 24
Classificazione	331.71
Disciplina	330.157
Soggetti	Economics - Austria Austrian school of economics Business & Economics - Economics - Theory Economic theory & philosophy History
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Sommario/riassunto	The modern school of Austrian economics took shape in the 1970s, and reflects the social science questions of its time. Is it still relevant today, considering that the theories that drive contemporary social science have evolved dramatically over the past few decades? While Austrian concerns such as property rights and imperfect cognition have become more common, other aspects of the Austrian thought are even more idiosyncratic than ever. In the ten chapters included here, leading economists explore whether Austrian economics still has unique insights to offer the world of today. Starting with Peter Boettke's lead essay, "What is Wrong with Austrian Economics?", chapters include an array of perspectives responding to this question, ranging from economics, to intellectual history, to political science, and to philosophy. At the end of the volume, Boettke offers a rejoinder, asking, "What is Right About Austrian Economics?" Together, these essays explore the barriers to the spread of Austrian ideas, ask which disciplines might be receptive to them, examine the role of ideology and funding in helping and hindering the school, and consider the advantages and disadvantages of different strategies for expanding engagement with other scholars.
