Record Nr. UNINA9910795614403321 Autore Jurkovich Michelle <1983-> Titolo Feeding the hungry: advocacy and blame in the global fight against hunger / / Michelle Jurkovich [[electronic resource]] Ithaca:,: Cornell University Press,, 2021 Pubbl/distr/stampa 1-5017-5117-4 ISBN 1-5017-5116-6 Descrizione fisica 1 online resource (184 pages): illustrations Collana Cornell scholarship online Disciplina 363.8 Food relief - Political aspects Soggetti Right to food Hunger - Political aspects Food security - Political aspects Food relief - International cooperation Hunger - Prevention - International cooperation Lingua di pubblicazione Inglese Formato Materiale a stampa Livello bibliografico Monografia Note generali Previously issued in print: 2020. Includes bibliographical references and index. Nota di bibliografia Nota di contenuto Putting Hunger on the Agenda -- How to Think about Advocacy -- Not All Human Rights Have Norms -- Hunger at the Nexus of Rights and Development -- The Limits of Law. Sommario/riassunto Food insecurity poses one of the most pressing development and human security challenges in the world. This book examines the social and normative environments in which international anti-hunger organizations are working and argues that despite international law ascribing responsibility to national governments to ensure the right to food of their citizens, there is no shared social consensus on who ought to do what to solve the hunger problem. The book provides a new analytic model of transnational advocacy. In investigating advocacy around a critical economic and social right - the right to food - the book challenges existing understandings of the relationships among human rights, norms, and laws. Most important, the book provides an expanded conceptual tool kit with which we can examine and understand the social and moral forces at play in rights advocacy.