

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910797189103321
Autore	Huer Jon
Titolo	Labor avoidance : the origins of inhumanity / / Jon Huer
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Lanham, Maryland : , : Hamilton Books, , 2015 ©2015
ISBN	0-7618-6551-9
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (277 p.)
Disciplina	341.6 341.66
Soggetti	Work - Social aspects Work aversion Laziness
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Contents; Introduction; 1 Between Nature and Society; 2 Our "Human Nature"; 3 The Origins of All Things; 4 Trouble in Paradise; 5 Eden Revisited; 6 Between "Here" and "There"; 7 We Must Still Eat to Live; 8 Somebody Else's Labor; 9 Somebody Else's Energy; 10 Somebody Else's Life; 11 Romans, Nazis, and Americans; 12 To Work or Not to Work; 13 The Talented, Best, and Brightest Few; 14 The No-Labor Promise; 15 The Golden Age of America; 16 Capitalism Destroys America's Golden Age; 17 A Day in the New Paradise; 18 Adam Smith Never Knew Capitalism; 19 To Work or To Play; 20 Master or Slave 21 The Beginnings of Good and Evil 22 From Tools to Machines; 23 Here Comes the Lazy Body; 24 The Sweet Stench of Power; 25 The Daring Escape that Failed; 26 What Was, What Is, What Might Have Been; 27 Two Variations and a Recapitulation; 28 Freewill and the Law; 29 Robinson Crusoe and "Friday"; 30 Crime as Short-Cut Labor; 31 The Obsolete Science of Economics; 32 Shared Labor, No Labor; 33 Jesus, Jefferson, Smith, and Marx; 34 The "New World" Becomes "Old"; Bibliography; Index
Sommario/riassunto	Jon Huer is professor of sociology at the University of Maryland University College. He has written over a dozen books of social criticism, including

The
Wages of Sin, Tenure for Socrates, Call from the Cave, and The Dead End, which
TIME
Magazine's Lance Morrow called "an important and often brilliant book."
