

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910797272103321
Autore	Morrison Karen Y.
Titolo	Cuba's racial crucible : the sexual economy of social identities, 1750-2000 // Karen Y. Morrison
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Bloomington, Indiana ; ; Indianapolis, [Indiana] : , : Indiana University Pres, , 2015 ©2015
ISBN	0-253-01660-6
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (373 p.)
Collana	Blacks in the Diaspora
Disciplina	305.80097291
Soggetti	Black people - Race identity - Cuba - History White people - Race identity - Cuba - History Racially mixed people - Race identity - Cuba - History Human reproduction - Social aspects - Cuba - History Human reproduction - Economic aspects - Cuba - History Genealogy - Social aspects - Cuba - History Families - Cuba - History Nationalism - Social aspects - Cuba - History Cuba Race relations History Cuba Race relations Economic aspects History
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Introduction: A crucible of race : historicizing the sexual economy of Cuban social identities -- Ascendant capitalism and white intellectual re-assessments of Afro-Cuban social value to 1820 -- Slavery and Afro-Cuban family formation during Cuba's economic awakening, 1763-1820 -- The illegal slave trade and the Cuban sexual economy of race, 1820-1867 -- Nineteenth-century racial myths and the familial corruption of whiteness -- Afro-Cuban family emancipation, 1868-1886 -- "Regenerating" the Afro-Cuban family, 1886-1940 -- Mestizaje literary visions and Afro-Cuban genealogical memory, 1920-1958 -- Epilogue: Revolutionary social morality and the multi-racial national family, 1959-2000.

Sommario/riassunto

"For the past two centuries, competing views of Cuban racial identity have remained in continuous tension, with whiteness, blackness, and race mixture variably upheld as ideals. Cuba's Racial Crucible explores the historical dynamics behind Cuban racial identities by highlighting the racially-selective reproductive practices and genealogical memories associated with family formation. Karen Y. Morrison reads archival, oral-history, and literary sources to demonstrate the ideological centrality and inseparability of race, nation, and family in definitions of Cubanidad. Morrison analyzes the conditions that supported the social advance and decline of notions of white racial superiority, nationalist projections of racial hybridity, and pride in African descent that influenced, but also were shaped by, Cuban men and women's every day, racially-oriented choices in creating families"--Provided by publisher.
