1. Record Nr. UNINA9910797999903321 Autore Wick Alexis <1981-> Titolo The Red Sea: in search of lost space / / Alexis Wick Pubbl/distr/stampa Oakland, California:,: University of California Press,, 2016 ©2016 ISBN 0-520-96126-9 Descrizione fisica 1 online resource (276 p.) Disciplina 909.096533 Soggetti HISTORY / World Red Sea Region History Lingua di pubblicazione Inglese Formato Materiale a stampa Livello bibliografico Monografia Note generali Description based upon print version of record. Nota di bibliografia Includes bibliographical references and index. Nota di contenuto Front matter -- Contents -- Illustrations -- Acknowledgments -- Note on Translation and Transliteration -- Introduction. History at Sea: Space and the Other -- 1. The Place in the Middle: A Geohistory of the Red Sea -- 2. Thalassology alla Turca: Six Theses on the Philosophy of History -- 3. Self-Portrait of the Ottoman Red Sea, June 21, 1777 -- 4. The Scientific Invention of the Red Sea -- 5. Thalassomania: Modernity and the Sea -- Conclusion. Rigging the Historian's Craft: For an Epistemology of Composition -- Notes -- Bibliography -- Index Sommario/riassunto The Red Sea has, from time immemorial, been one of the world's most navigated spaces, in the pursuit of trade, pilgrimage and conquest. Yet this multidimensional history remains largely unrevealed by its successive protagonists. Intrigued by the absence of a holistic portrayal of this body of water and inspired by Fernand Braudel's famous work on the Mediterranean, this book brings alive a dynamic Red Sea world across time, revealing the particular features of a unique historical actor. In capturing this heretofore lost space, it also presents a critical, conceptual history of the sea, leading the reader into the heart of Eurocentrism. The Sea, it is shown, is a vital element of the modern philosophy of history. Alexis Wick is not satisfied with this inclusion of > the Red Sea into history and attendant critique of Eurocentrism. Contrapuntally, he explores how the world and the sea were imagined differently before imperial European hegemony. Searching for the lost space of Ottoman visions of the sea, The Red Sea makes a deeper argument about the discipline of history and the historian's craft.