1.	Record Nr.	UNINA9910798743803321
	Titolo	Religion and rights : The Oxford Amnesty lectures 2008 / / edited by Wes Williams
	Pubbl/distr/stampa	Manchester, [England] ; ; New York, New York : , : Manchester University Press, , 2011 ©2011
	ISBN	0-7190-9521-2
	Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (174 pages)
	Collana	Oxford Amnesty Lectures
	Disciplina	201.723
	Soggetti	Human rights - Religious aspects Religious tolerance
	Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
	Formato	Materiale a stampa
	Livello bibliografico	Monografia
	Note generali	Includes index.
	Nota di contenuto	Rights and religion : spaces for argument and agreement / Wendy James Race, faith and freedom in American and British history / Simon Schama Response to Simon Schama / Matthew Spooner Pentecost : learning the languages of peace / Stanley Hauerwas Response to Stanley Hauerwas / Pamela Sue Anderson Human rights in the Roman Catholic tradition / Charles E. Curran Response to Charles E. Curran / Nicholas Bamforth Worldviews and universalisms : the doctrine of "religion" in Islam and the idea of "rights" in the West / Hisham A. Hellyer Response to Hisham A. Hellyer / Chris Miller Terror and religion / Ronald Dworkin Response to Ronald Dworkin / John Tasioulas Can human rights accommodate pluralism? / Chantal Mouffe Response to Chantal Mouffe / Stuart White Symposium : freedom of belief, freedom from belief. The tolerance policy : way out or compromise? / Asma Jahangir; Religion and rights / A. C. Grayling; Freedom and human rights / John Pritchard; The right to believe / Andrew Brown; Out with "religion": a novel framing of the religion debate / Emma Cohen.
	Sommario/riassunto	Rights were once thought to derive from the God-given nature of man. But today human rights and religion are sometimes in conflict. The universal claims made for rights can put them at odds with the revealed truths from which religions derive their authority. Many people's sense of human worth and dignity nevertheless depends on recognising the divine in each of us. Where rights and revelation diverge, how can the differences be negotiated? How should we measure individual claims to freedom against the demands of religious traditions? In this volume, eminent theologians and anthropologists set out the terms of religion's holds on its own truths, while historians, philosophers, and activists set out their vision for a society in which the competing truths must be accommodated not peacefully but without violence. Their respondents join the debate with fierce conviction, indicating their doubts and concerns in relation to the often compatible but sometimes competing claims of religion and rights.