

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910800159703321
Titolo	Effective crime reduction strategies : international perspectives // edited by James Albrecht and Dilip K. Das
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Boca Raton : , : CRC Press, , 2011
ISBN	0-429-24976-4 1-4200-7840-2
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (650 p.)
Collana	International Police Executive Symposium co-publications
Altri autori (Persone)	AlbrechtJames F DasDilip K. <1941->
Disciplina	364.4
Soggetti	Crime prevention Transnational crime - Prevention Terrorism - Prevention
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Enhancing law enforcement professionalism, effectiveness and leadership in the 21st century.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	pt. 1. Critical issues in European law enforcement -- pt. 2. Contemporary concerns : policing in the United States and Canada -- pt. 3. Paradigm shifts : policing as a democracy evolves -- pt. 4. Revising traditional law -- pt. 5. The positive influence of unionization on police professionalism -- pt. 6. Significant issues facing twenty-first century law enforcement.
Sommario/riassunto	Police worldwide are finding it increasingly difficult to prevent crime and maintain public safety and a sense of security while dealing with decreasing budgets and personnel. The exchange of effective crime fighting principles and proven best practices is crucial to helping them succeed. Drawn from the proceedings at the 2005 IPES meeting in the Czech Republic on effective crime prevention, this book addresses the impact of terrorism and transnational crime on law enforcement in the U.S. and Europe, the effects of democratic reforms on policing, and the positive influence of the unionization of police forces. It also reviews counterterrorism, border control, transnational criminality, measurement of police effectiveness, and the investigation of juvenile crimes.--

