

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910807196903321
Titolo	What is a context? : linguistic approaches and challenges // edited by Rita Finkbeiner, Jorg Meibauer, and Petra B. Schumacher
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Amsterdam ; ; Philadelphia, : John Benjamins Pub. Co., 2012
ISBN	1-283-89483-1 90-272-7321-9
Edizione	[1st ed.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (261 p.)
Collana	Linguistik aktuell = linguistics today ; ; v. 196
Altri autori (Persone)	FinkbeinerRita MeibauerJorg SchumacherPetra B
Disciplina	401/.43
Soggetti	Context (Linguistics) Semantics
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	"This volume is a collection of original papers on the notion of context in linguistics. Six of the ten articles are based on papers presented at a Workshop on Context, held in February 2011 at the Annual Meeting of the German Linguistics Society (DGfS) at the Georg-August-University Göttingen, Germany."
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	pt. I. Linguistic perspectives on context -- pt. II. Case studies on context.
Sommario/riassunto	Recent work on numerically-quantified expressions has aimed to identify which components of their meaning are semantic and which are pragmatic. Pragmatically-oriented accounts assign a crucial role to contextual factors, such as the level of information requested in the preceding discourse and the availability of certain expressions to the speaker at the time of utterance. However, these models are typically imprecise as to which factors are relevant and how they interact. We discuss a recent proposal that treats numerical quantifier usage as a problem of multiple constraint satisfaction, and