

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910807270503321
Autore	Andrews Jean
Titolo	The pepper trail : history & recipes from around the world // written and illustrated by Jean Andrews
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Denton, TX, : University of North Texas Press, c1999
ISBN	0-585-25227-0
Edizione	[1st ed.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (x, 261 pages) : illustrations, maps
Disciplina	641.6/384
Soggetti	Cooking (Hot peppers) Hot peppers
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Bibliographic Level Mode of Issuance: Monograph
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (p. 233-242) and indexes.
Nota di contenuto	Intro -- Contents -- Foreword -- Part 1 The Pepper -- Which Way Did They Go? -- The First Hot Spots -- Hot Spots Today -- What is a Pepper? -- Look at Me -- Part 2 Preparation & -- Recipes -- Cooking with Peppers -- Before, Soups & -- Salads -- Meat, Fowl, Seafood -- Vegetarian -- Sauces -- Breads -- Desserts -- Preserves & -- Condiments -- Bibliography -- Subject Index -- Recipe Index.
Sommario/riassunto	This is not your everyday cookbook. It is a cultural history of a food--with recipes--put together by an inquisitive scholar, gardener, cook, traveler, and artist who fell in love with peppers more than twenty years ago. During that time I attempted to learn what they are, where they came from, where they moved, and how they affected the cooking in the places they went. I thought others might be interested in what I discovered. It is written in two parts--the history, geography, and background in the first and the cookery in the second, with a bibliography for those who want more. It bombards the reader with an awesome amount of data pieced together from various fragments of information into an overwhelming historical, and geographical study of the pepper pod. It won't hurt my feelings if you just skip to the recipes, but you'll miss a hot story.