

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910808081503321
Autore	Brown Neville
Titolo	The bounds of liberalism : the fragility of freedom // Neville Brown
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Brighton : , : Sussex Academic Press, , 2014
ISBN	1-78284-124-5 1-78284-126-1
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (364 p.)
Disciplina	320.51
Soggetti	Liberalism Equality
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Front Cover -- About this book -- About the Author -- Title Page -- Copyright -- Contents -- Preface -- The Author -- Approaches to Analysis -- Chapter 1: Evolutionary Legacies -- 1 Our Deeper Past -- 2 A Northerly Inclination -- Chapter 2: Whence Social Liberalism? -- 1 Through the Enlightenment -- 2 Left versus Right -- Chapter 3: Testing Experience -- 1 Planetary Liberalism -- 2 Distracted by War -- Chapter 4: The Communist Crash -- 1 From Marx to Fromm -- 2 The Cold War -- Chapter 5: Whither Social Liberalism? -- 1 Pathways to Prescription -- 2 Rational or Reasonable -- Accommodating Science -- Chapter 6: Digital Deluge -- Chapter 7: Biology Rampant -- Chapter 8: The Ultimate Challenges -- 1 Defended Peace -- 2 To Here from Eternity -- Parametric Change -- Chapter 9: Global Outreach -- 1 Planetary Horizons -- 2 Democracy Assertive -- 3 Currency Management -- Chapter 10: Elusive Fulfilment -- 1 Shallow Satisfaction -- 2 Anomie -- Chapter 11: Urgent Concerns -- Holistic Response -- Chapter 12: Sovereign Governance -- Chapter 13: Scientific Liberalism -- Chapter 14: A Liberal Reconnaissance -- 1 Bodies Politic -- 2 Planetary Patriotism -- Chapter 15: Two Tough Centuries? -- Appendix A Controlled Nuclear Fusion -- Appendix B Acute Natural Hazards -- Appendix C The High Seas -- Index.
Sommario/riassunto	The central question at the heart of this consideration is how far the West may need to modify or extend the liberal philosophy that informs its responses to the multiple world crises it is currently addressing. The book provides a review of the strengths and weaknesses of a social liberalism that, broadly speaking, occupies the ground between the moderate Right and the moderate Left, and is founded upon the conviction that the world, in 50 years, will be either considerably better than it is currently or else a good deal worse. This study argues that those concerned with ensuring the former outcome should promote the spread of well-founded democracy among emergent states, without forgetting to look stringently at how well democratic institutions may function in the mass societies of the West. The author applies his expertise in history, international security, planetary development, and applied geophysics in discussing issues such as climate change and resource depletion; community decay, data saturation, democratic devolution, and medical philosophy; and biowarfare, international political economy, and a planetary ethos. He argues that humanity is passing through an evolutionary transition as impacting as that between the Old and the New Stone Ages, and that humankind's perspectives on the immediate future may be honed by free-ranging speculation about what it can anticipate over the next few centuries.
