Record Nr. UNINA9910810587003321 Autore Page Benjamin I Titolo Living with the dragon: how the American public views the rise of China / / Benjamin I. Page, Tao Xie New York, : Columbia University Press, c2010 Pubbl/distr/stampa ISBN 1-282-79664-X 9786612796647 0-231-52549-4 Descrizione fisica 1 online resource (161 p.) Collana Contemporary Asia in the world Altri autori (Persone) XieTao <1973-> Disciplina 327.51073 Soggetti Public opinion - United States China Foreign public opinion, American United States Relations China China Relations United States Lingua di pubblicazione Inglese Formato Materiale a stampa Livello bibliografico Monografia Description based upon print version of record. Note generali Nota di bibliografia Includes bibliographical references and index. The United States and China -- The economic dragon -- The rise of Nota di contenuto China as a world power -- Democracy and human rights -- Friends or foes? -- The future of U.S.-China relations. Sommario/riassunto It is widely believed that most Americans not only distrust but also despise China. Considering the country's violent political history, unprecedented economic rise, and growing military capabilities, China has become America's strongest market competitor and arguably the most challenging global threat to the United States. Nevertheless, a full consideration of American opinion proves the opposite to be true. Carefully analyzing all available polls and surveys, Benjamin I. Page and Tao Xie find most Americans favor peaceful engagement with China. The public view has been surprisingly coherent and consistent, changing only in response to major events and new information. While a majority of Americans are not happy that China's economy is projected to become as large as that of the United States, they are prepared to live with it. "Unfair" Chinese trade practices and their impact on American jobs and wages are a concern, along with the quality and safety of Chinese-made goods. However, Americans favor free trade with China, provided it is tempered with environmental and workplace protections. They also believe that the United States should "balance" Chinese power through alliances with neighboring countries, such as Japan. Yet they oppose military action to defend Taiwan. Page and Xie examine these opinions in relation to facts about China and in light of current U.S. debates on diplomacy and policy.