

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910812248203321
Autore	Coates Timothy J. <1952->
Titolo	Convict labor in the Portuguese empire, 1740-1932 : redefining the empire with forced labor and new imperialism // by Timothy J. Coates
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Leiden, Netherlands : , : Brill, , 2014 ©2014
ISBN	90-04-25431-5
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (231 p.)
Collana	European expansion and indigenous response, , 1873-8974 ; ; Volume 13
Disciplina	331.11/73
Soggetti	Convict labor - Portugal - Colonies - History Portugal Colonies Emigration and immigration History
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Preliminary Material -- Introduction -- 1. The Global Portuguese Penal System to circa 1830 -- 2. Setting the Stage for Africa -- 3. Colonial Realities in an Empire without Brazil -- 4. Crimes, Punishments, Ages, and Origins of Convicts -- 5. Work and Freedom -- 6. Comparisons and Conclusions -- Appendices -- Bibliography -- Index.
Sommario/riassunto	Forced convict labor provided the Portuguese with solutions to the growing criminal population at home and the lack of infrastructure in Angola and Mozambique. In Convict Labor in the Portuguese Empire , Timothy J. Coates examines the role of large numbers of convicts in Portuguese Africa from 1800 until 1932. This work examines the numbers, rationale, and realities of convict labor (largely) in Angola during this period, but Mozambique is a secondary area, as well as late colonial times in Brazil. This is a unique, first study of an experiment in convict labor in Africa directed by a European power; it will be welcomed by scholars of Africa and New Imperialism, as well as those interested in law and labor.