

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910812465803321
Autore	Pauly Mark V. <1941->
Titolo	Health reform without side effects : making markets work for individual health insurance // Mark V. Pauly
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Stanford, Calif., : Hoover Institution Press, c2010
ISBN	0-8179-1046-8
Edizione	[1st ed.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (123 p.)
Collana	Hoover Institution Press publication ; ; no. 580
Disciplina	362.1068
Soggetti	Health care reform - United States Health insurance - Self-insurance - United States Health insurance - United States
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Front Cover; Title Page; Copyright; Contents; Foreword by John Raisian; Acknowledgments; Problem definition; The lay of the land: How many people have what problems?; Can individual insurance help?; Coverage for high risks; Community rating: the worst possible way to do a good thing; What's wrong with individual insurance?; What is good about the individual market?; How not to critique the individual health insurance market; Lowering administrative costs; Buying groups and exchanges: How many Chihuahuas equal a Great Dane? ; Regulation and pricing without exchanges Insurance company economics, sharp practices, premiums, and exclusionsSubsidies; What to hope for and what to expect; Offering the right product; The ideal and the feasible: compromises and mixes; Conclusion; References; About the Author; About the Hoover Institution Working Group on Health Care Policy; Index
Sommario/riassunto	Mark V. Pauly offers a detailed look at the individual insurance market in the United States. He explains how it works, suggests approaches to improvement that build on what currently works well, and provides a realistic assessment of how much improvement we can demand and expect. He concludes that, although there are some serious deficiencies in today's individual insurance market, there are also some important advantages in this market that should be preserved.

