

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910812750903321
Autore	Arditti Joyce A
Titolo	Parental incarceration and the family : psychological and social effects of imprisonment on children, parents, and caregivers // Joyce A. Arditti
Pubbl/distr/stampa	New York, : New York University Press, c2012
ISBN	0-8147-0805-6 0-8147-0513-8
Edizione	[1st ed.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (260 p.)
Disciplina	362.82/95
Soggetti	Prisoners' families - United States Children of prisoners - United States Children of women prisoners - United States Prisoners - Family relationships - United States Women prisoners - Family relationships - United States
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Introduction: a framework for understanding parental incarceration -- Context and processes -- Maternal incarceration -- Paternal incarceration -- The effects on families and children -- Conclusions: practice and policy implications of a family perspective.
Sommario/riassunto	Over 2% of U.S.children under the age of 18—more than 1,700,000 children—have a parent in prison. These children experience very real disadvantages when compared to their peers: they tend to experience lower levels of educational success, social exclusion, and even a higher likelihood of their own future incarceration. Meanwhile, their new caregivers have to adjust to their new responsibilities as their lives change overnight, and the incarcerated parents are cut off from their children's development.Parental Incarceration and the Family brings a family perspective to our understanding of what it means to have so many of our nation's parents in prison. Drawing from the field's most recent research and the author's own fieldwork, Joyce Arditti offers an in-depth look at how incarceration affects entire families: offender parents, children, and care-givers. Through the use of exemplars, anecdotes, and reflections, Joyce Arditti puts a human face on the mass of humanity behind bars, as well as those family members who are affected by a parent's imprisonment. In focusing on offenders as parents, a radically different social policy agenda emerges—one that calls for real reform and that responds to the collective vulnerabilities of the incarcerated and their kin.
