

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910812992603321
Autore	Kellner Menachem Marc <1946->
Titolo	Dogma in medieval Jewish thought : from Maimonides to Abravanel / / Menachem Kellner [[electronic resource]]
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Oxford : , : The Littman Library of Jewish Civilization, , 2004
ISBN	1-80034-037-0 1-909821-42-X
Edizione	[First digital on-demand edition.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (xiii, 310 pages) : digital, PDF file(s)
Collana	Liverpool scholarship online
Disciplina	296.3/09/02
Soggetti	Judaism - History of doctrines Jewish philosophy - History Philosophy, Medieval Judaism - History - Medieval and early modern period, 425-1789 Judaism
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Title from publisher's bibliographic system (viewed on 05 Jul 2019).
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Sommario/riassunto	Dogma in Medieval Jewish Thought is an essay in the history of ideas which traces the development of creed formation in Judaism from its inception with Moses Maimonides (1138-1204) to the beginning of the sixteenth century when systematic attention to the problem disappeared from the agenda of Jewish intellectuals. The dogmatic systems of Maimonides, Duran, Crescas, Albo, Bibago, Abravanel, and a dozen lesser-known figures are described, analysed, and compared. Relevant texts are presented in English translation. For the most part these are texts which have never been critically edited and translated before. Among the theses defended in the book are the following: that systematic attention to dogma qua dogma was a new feature in Jewish theology introduced by Maimonides (for reasons examined at length in the book); that the subject languished for the two centuries after Maimonides' death until it was revived in fifteenth-century Spain in response to Christian attacks on Judaism; that the differing systems of dogma offered by medieval Jewish thinkers reflect not different conceptions of what Judaism is, but different conceptions of what a principle of Judaism is; and that the very project of creed formation reflects an essentially Greek as opposed to a biblical/rabbinic view of the nature of religious faith and that this accounts for much of the resistance which Maimonides' innovation aroused. 'An important contribution to the history of dogma in Judaism and to the history of fifteenth-century Jewish thought in particular.' Chava Tirosh-Rothschild, Critical Review 'A work of serious scholarship. It will no doubt become the standard work on the subject for many years to come.'
