Sommario/riassunto	A critical turn in human resource development This issue will comprise a number of papers relating to a series of themes on critical human resource development. The editors proposed the theme due to their concern that the debates and practice of human resource development (HRD) were being dominated by an unquestioning performativity or an assumption of benign humanism.Previously published in: Journal of European Industrial Training, Volume 28, Number 8/9, 2004 Previously published in: Records Management Journal, Volume 14, Number 3, 2004
