

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910814705003321
Titolo	Understanding the counselling relationship // edited by Colin Feltham
Pubbl/distr/stampa	London, : SAGE, 1999
ISBN	1-4462-3969-1 1-4462-6621-4 1-283-88098-9 1-4462-1803-1
Edizione	[1st ed.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (xii, 244 p.) : ill
Collana	Professional skills for counsellors
Altri autori (Persone)	FelthamColin <1950->
Disciplina	158.3
Soggetti	Counselor and client
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Cover; Contents; Notes on Contributors; Introduction; Chapter 1 - Contextualizing the Therapeutic Relationship; Chapter 2 - The Relationship in Psychodynamic Counselling; Chapter 3 - The Relationship in Person-Centred Counselling; Chapter 4 - Dialogical Psychotherapy; Chapter 5 - 'I'm OK, You're OK - and They're OK': Therapeutic Relationships in Transactional Analysis; Chapter 6 - The Therapeutic Relationship in Cognitive Therapy; Chapter 7 - The Relationship in Multimodal Therapy; Chapter 8 - The Counselling Relationship and Psychological Type Chapter 9 - Professional and Socio-Cultural Aspects of the Counselling Relationship Chapter 10 - Learning from Research into the Counselling Relationship; Index
Sommario/riassunto	Written for those involved in counselling, this book presents the contrasting views of a range of practitioners about the therapeutic relationship. They each consider the relational variables that have most bearing on the practice of therapy.