

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910816084703321
Autore	Halebsky Stephen <1954->
Titolo	Small towns and big business : challenging Wal-Mart superstores / / Stephen Halebsky
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Lanham, MD, : Lexington Books, c2009
ISBN	1-282-49415-5 9786612494154 0-7391-3347-0
Edizione	[1st ed.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (249 p.)
Classificazione	QQ 440
Disciplina	381.1490973
Soggetti	Discount houses (Retail trade) - United States Small cities - Economic aspects - United States Big business - Social aspects - United States Quality of life - United States USA
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Small Towns and Big Business; Contents; Tables and Figures; Acknowledgments; Chapter 01: Introduction; Chapter 02: Big Retailers, Aggressive Retail Development, and the Roots of Local Protest; Chapter 03: How Superstores Affect Small Towns; Chapter 04: Gig Harbor, Washington, and Petoskey, Michigan; Chapter 05: West Bend, Wisconsin, and Ottawa, Ohio; Chapter 06: Ashland, Wisconsin, and Eureka, California; Chapter 07: Explaining Success; Chapter 08: The Local State, Corporate Retailing, McDonaldization, and Local Anticorporate Activism; Appendix; Bibliography; Index; About the Author
Sommario/riassunto	Small Towns and Big Business comprehensively examines the phenomenon of local protests against Wal-Mart superstores. Using fieldwork and archival sources, Halebsky situates these protests in the context of economic restructuring and the expansion of retailing; explains how some local social movements were able to successfully fend off the world's largest retailer; and assesses the implications for efforts to limit corporate power, resist McDonaldization, and protect local quality of life.
