

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910817708903321
Autore	Lause Mark A
Titolo	Price's lost campaign [[electronic resource] ] : the 1864 invasion of Missouri // Mark A. Lause
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Columbia, Mo., : University of Missouri Press, 2011
ISBN	0-8262-7263-0
Edizione	[2nd ed.]
Descrizione fisica	264 p
Collana	Shades of blue and gray series
Disciplina	973.737
Soggetti	Price's Missouri Expedition, 1864 Missouri History Civil War, 1861-1865 United States History Civil War, 1861-1865 Campaigns
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Bibliographic Level Mode of Issuance: Monograph
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Prologue: The sacred soil of Missouri, the state, the army, and the department -- 1. The beginning. Of conquest and liberation : from Arkansas into Missouri ; September 27 : from Pilot Knob through Potosi to Centralia ; Sounding the alarm: the road to Rolla -- 2. The primary goal. The mysteries of St. Louis : myths and realities in the city's defense ; At the gates of the metropolis : Pacific and Union -- 3. The secondary goal. The turning point : from the Bourbeuse to the Gasconade ; The Westward march : from Boeuf Creek to the Osage River ; The capital : from the Osage River to Jefferson City -- Epilogue: Shaping the memory of a Civil War campaign -- Appendix A: Timetable of the Missouri Campaign, August 29-October 8, 1864 -- Appendix B: Engaged units.
Sommario/riassunto	Examines Price's Raid, the Confederate attempt to defeat the Republicans in the Federal election by influencing voters in Missouri. Looks at the political, economic, social, and cultural aspects of the Raid.