

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910819347803321
Autore	Gonda Jeffrey D.
Titolo	Unjust deeds : the restrictive covenant cases and the making of the civil rights movement // Jeffrey D. Gonda
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Chapel Hill, [North Carolina] : , : The University of North Carolina Press, , 2015 ©2015
ISBN	979-88-908503-6-2 1-4696-2546-6 1-4696-2547-4
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (312 p.)
Collana	Justice, Power, and Politics
Disciplina	344.730636351
Soggetti	Discrimination in housing - Law and legislation - United States Real covenants - United States African Americans - Legal status, laws, etc
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Based on author's thesis (doctoral -Yale University, 2012) issued under title: Home front.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Covenants: race and housing in the 1940s -- Courtrooms : local lawyers and legal activism -- The NAACP : national leadership and housing desegregation -- To Washington : the Department of Justice and the Supreme Court -- Failures and foundations: the covenant cases and postwar black freedom struggles.
Sommario/riassunto	'Unjust Deeds' explores the history of an often overlooked civil rights milestone: the landmark U.S. Supreme Court decision in Shelley v. Kraemer (1948). In a group of cases from St. Louis, Detroit, and Washington, D.C., six African American families challenged the hardening boundaries of the nation's racial ghettos as they fought desperately to hold onto their homes. Aided by the NAACP and local civil rights attorneys, they attacked the legal legitimacy of racial restrictive covenants, one of the most pervasive instruments of residential segregation in the 1940s. Their campaign culminated in a unanimous Supreme Court victory that left the struggle for justice under the law forever transformed. 'Unjust Deeds' explores the origins and complex legacies of the covenant cases and reveals how the campaign against housing discrimination helped to reshape the post-war nation.
