

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910819360903321
Autore	Hart-Landsberg Martin
Titolo	Capitalist globalization : consequences, resistance, and alternatives / / by Martin Hart-Landsberg
Pubbl/distr/stampa	New York : , : Monthly Review Press, , [2013] ©2013
ISBN	1-58367-354-7 1-58367-355-5
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (224 pages.)
Disciplina	330.122
Soggetti	market economy economic development transnational corporation globalisation
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	part I. Capitalist globalization -- part II. The neoliberal project and resistance -- part III. Alternatives to capitalist globalization.
Sommario/riassunto	""Globalization,"" surely one of the most used and abused buzzwords of recent decades, describes a phenomenon that is typically considered to be a neutral and inevitable expansion of market forces across the planet. Nearly all economists, politicians, business leaders, and mainstream journalists view globalization as the natural result of economic development, and a beneficial one at that. But, as noted economist Martin Hart-Landsberg argues, this perception does not match the reality of globalization. The rise of transnational corporations and their global production chains was the result of