

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910819812703321
Autore	Gallman J. Matthew (James Matthew)
Titolo	Receiving Erin's children : Philadelphia, Liverpool, and the Irish famine migration, 1845-1855 // J. Matthew Gallman
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Chapel Hill, : University of North Carolina Press, c2000
ISBN	979-88-908681-0-7 0-8078-6071-9
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (320 p.)
Disciplina	942.7/53081
Soggetti	Immigrants - England - Liverpool - History - 19th century Immigrants - Pennsylvania - Philadelphia - History - 19th century Irish Americans - Pennsylvania - Philadelphia - History - 19th century Irish - England - Liverpool - History - 19th century Ireland Emigration and immigration History 19th century Ireland History Famine, 1845-1852 Liverpool (England) Emigration and immigration History 19th century Liverpool (England) Social conditions 19th century Philadelphia (Pa.) Emigration and immigration History 19th century Philadelphia (Pa.) Social conditions
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Acknowledgments; 1. Immigrants and Hosts; 2. Migration and Reception; 3. Poverty, Philanthropy, and Poor Relief; 4. Hospitals, Cholera, and Medical Care; 5. Environmental Reform; 6. Sectarian Conflicts: Churches and Schools; 7. Street Violence and the Pursuit of Public Order; Conclusion; Notes; Index
Sommario/riassunto	Between 1845 and 1855, 2 million Irish men and women fled their famine-ravaged homeland, many to settle in large British and American cities that were already wrestling with a complex array of urban problems. In this innovative work of comparative urban history, Matthew Gallman looks at how two cities, Philadelphia and Liverpool, met the challenges raised by the influx of immigrants. Gallman examines how citizens and policymakers in Philadelphia and Liverpool dealt with such issues as poverty, disease, poor sanitation, crime, sectarian conflict, and juvenile delinquency. By considering
