Record Nr. UNINA9910820200803321 Autore Gadsby Meredith Titolo Sucking salt: Caribbean women writers, migration, and survival // Meredith M. Gadsby Columbia, : University of Missouri Press, c2006 Pubbl/distr/stampa ISBN 0-8262-6521-9 Edizione [1st ed.] Descrizione fisica 1 online resource (240 p.) 810.9/9287097291 Disciplina Soggetti American literature - Women authors - History and criticism American literature - Caribbean American authors - History and criticism Canadian literature - Women authors - History and criticism English literature - Women authors - History and criticism Women authors, Caribbean - English-speaking countries Minority women in literature Ethnicity in literature Culture in literature National characteristics, Caribbean Caribbean Area Social life and customs Lingua di pubblicazione Inglese Formato Materiale a stampa Livello bibliografico Monografia Bibliographic Level Mode of Issuance: Monograph Note generali Nota di bibliografia Includes bibliographical references (p. 195-209) and index. Nota di contenuto Introduction: little salt won't kill you -- The salience of memory: the cultural and historical significance of salt in the Caribbean -- "It sweeter than meat!": saltfish, sexual politics, and the Caribbean oral imagination -- Harvesting salt : Caribbean women writers in England and the philosophy of survival -- I suck coarse salt: Caribbean women writers in Canada--language, location, and the politics of transcendence -- Refugees of a world on fire : kitchen place and refugee space in the poetics of Paule Marshall and Edwidge Danticat.

Sommario/riassunto "Examines the literature of black Caribbean emigrant and island women > including Dorothea Smartt, Edwidge Danticat, Paule Marshall, and others, who use the terminology and imagery of "sucking salt" as an articulation of a New World voice connoting adaptation, improvisation, and creativity, offering a new understanding of diaspora, literature, and