

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910820264403321
Titolo	Augustine and the environment // edited by John Doody, Kim Paffenroth, and Mark Smillie
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Lanham, Maryland : , : Lexington Books, , 2016 ©2016
ISBN	1-4985-4191-7
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (225 p.)
Collana	Augustine in Conversation: Tradition and Innovation
Disciplina	261.8/8092
Soggetti	Ecotheology Human ecology - Religious aspects - Christianity Creation
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Contents; Introduction; Part I: Introductory and General Discussions; Chapter One: "But Enough About Me"; Chapter Two: Augustine and Ecology; Part II: Humans in the Environment; Chapter Three: The Moral Teachings of St. Augustine and the Roman Catholic Church Regarding the Environment; Chapter Four: Anthropocene as Empire; Chapter Five: Interdependent and Vulnerable; Part III: The Nonhuman Universe; Chapter Six: Saint Augustine on "Saving Both Men and Beasts"; Chapter Seven: Toward an Augustinian Eco-theology; Chapter Eight: Saint Augustine Chapter Nine: Augustine's Trinitarian Sacramental Sensibilities, Influence, and Significance for Our Imperiled Planet Chapter Ten: Saint Augustine and the Goodness of Creation; Chapter Eleven: A Green Augustine; Bibliography; Index; About the Contributors
Sommario/riassunto	This volume examines Augustine's writings and shows their importance for framing questions of human and divine nature, as both shape our concept of and relationship to the environment. These essays will further any discussion on Christianity and the environment.