

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910821298703321
Autore	Silkey Sarah L.
Titolo	Black woman reformer : Ida B. Wells, lynching, and transatlantic activism // Sarah L. Silkey ; designed by Kaelin Chappell Broaddus
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Athens, Georgia : , : The University of Georgia Press, , 2015 ©2015
ISBN	0-8203-5378-7 0-8203-4692-6
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (221 p.)
Disciplina	323.092
Soggetti	African American women African American women civil rights workers African American women social reformers Lynching - United States - Foreign public opinion, British Civil rights workers - United States Social reformers - United States Public opinion - Great Britain - History - 18th century
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	British responses to American lynching -- The emergence of a transatlantic reformer -- The struggle for legitimacy -- Building a transatlantic debate on lynching -- American responses to British protest -- A transatlantic legacy.
Sommario/riassunto	During the early 1890's, a series of shocking lynchings brought unprecedented international attention to American mob violence. This interest created an opportunity for Ida B. Wells, an African American journalist and civil rights activist from Memphis, to travel to England to cultivate British moral indignation against American lynching. Wells adapted race and gender roles established by African American abolitionists in Britain to legitimate her activism as a "black lady reformer"-a role American society denied her-and assert her right to defend her race from abroad. Based on extensive