

| | |
|-------------------------|--|
| 1. Record Nr. | UNINA9910822558203321 |
| Autore | Gentry Caron E. |
| Titolo | This American moment : a feminist Christian realist intervention // Caron E. Gentry |
| Pubbl/distr/stampa | New York, NY : , : Oxford University Press, , 2018 |
| ISBN | 0-19-090128-4 0-19-090129-2 0-19-090127-6 |
| Descrizione fisica | 1 online resource (209 pages) |
| Collana | Oxford studies in gender and international relations |
| Disciplina | 327.101 |
| Soggetti | International relations Feminist theory Christianity and international relations Anxiety - Social aspects - United States Political culture - United States |
| Lingua di pubblicazione | Inglese |
| Formato | Materiale a stampa |
| Livello bibliografico | Monografia |
| Note generali | Previously issued in print: 2018. |
| Nota di bibliografia | Includes bibliographical references and index. |
| Nota di contenuto | Love in political times -- Creatively engaging the political -- A house divided now in flames -- The war on women -- We need to talk about fascism. |
| Sommario/riassunto | 'This American Moment' focuses on the concept of anxiety politics by arguing that America is in crisis. Those who uphold or participate in racist and misogynist politics are threatened by changes to the status quo, such as the economic gains made by women and therefore respond with reactivity and defensiveness. This text examines first, the Black Lives Matter campaign as the latest disruption of the raced structures that define America and the anxious reactions that seek to protect and maintain the race structures; second, the particular economic, bodily, and reproductive health vulnerabilities that women face that have amalgamated into America's War on Women as anxious reactions to maintain patriarchy; and, finally, the how racism and misogyny unwittingly and rather unexpectedly led to the election of Trump and opened the door to fascism in the United States. |

