

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910823553703321
Titolo	Securing an urban renaissance : crime, community, and British urban policy // edited by Rowland Atkinson and Gesa Helms
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Brisol, UK, : Policy Press, 2007
ISBN	1-4473-0332-6 1-281-74163-9 9786611741631 1-84742-247-0
Edizione	[1st ed.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (x, 292 pages) : digital, PDF file(s)
Altri autori (Persone)	AtkinsonRowland HelmsGesa
Disciplina	307.3/4160941
Soggetti	Community development, Urban - Great Britain Urban policy - Great Britain Urban renewal - Great Britain Crime prevention - Great Britain
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	"... based on a conference organised by the Department of Urban Studies, University of Glasgow, held in June 2005."--P. vi.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (p. 245-276) and index.
Nota di contenuto	Cover; SECURING AN URBAN RENAISSANCE; Contents; List of tables and figures; Acknowledgements; Notes on contributors; 1. Introduction; The 'rebirth' of British cities; Safety, security, and urban regeneration; Outline of the collection; An urban renaissance secured?; Part I. Theories and concepts; 2. Framing the governance of urban space; Frames and imaginaries; Rational discourses of government: from laissez-faire to the New Right; New Labour, urban renaissance, and security; Problem-solving frames; Translating the rhetoric of crime control; Conclusion 3. The planning, design, and governance of sustainable communities in the UKSecurity, safety, and the discourses of sustainable community building; Securing sustainable communities: the rationalities and priorities of the new spatial planning; Conclusion; 4. Is urban regeneration criminogenic?; Social inclusion and 'radical urban policy'; Opportunity knocks; Opportunities missed; Regeneration and punitive crime control policies; Urban regeneration versus 'community'?; Consumption versus citizenship; Economic and social divisions and victimisation; Conclusion; Part II. Policies and agendas

5. New Labour's 'broken' neighbourhoods: liveability, disorder, and discipline? Urban renaissance to sustainable communities: extending policy horizons; Fixing 'broken' neighbourhoods: the intersection of urban regeneration and criminal justice policy; Conclusion; 6. Lockdown! Resilience, resurgence, and the stage-set city; Policy responses to urban threats; Lockdown!; Conclusion; 7. Tackling anti-social behaviour and regenerating neighbourhoods; Defining anti-social behaviour; Explaining anti-social behaviour; Connecting anti-social behaviour to regeneration; Conclusion

8. 'Problem' people, 'problem' places? New Labour and council estates Representing 'problem places'; New Labour's 'problem places'; Conclusion; Part III. Communities in control of (dis)order; 9. Community-police relations: support officers in low-income neighbourhoods; Origins and development; A mixed reception for CSOs: national deployment; The role of CSOs in local policing: evidence from low-income areas; Conclusion; 10. New governance of youth disorder: a study of local initiatives; Policy background to the new governance of youth disorder

Research studies: overview and rationale of the two initiatives Impacts of the initiatives; Conclusion; 11. The night-time economy: exploring tensions between agents of control; Night-time economy, urban renaissance, and social disorder; Pubwatching in Amnicola; Functional adaptation of the system; System dysfunction: conflicting interests and goals among participants; Making sense of the 'night network'; Conclusion; 12. Prostitution, gentrification, and the limits of neighbourhood space; Community responses to sex work; Community safety and the 'nuisance' of sex work

Sex work in the context of regeneration

Sommario/riassunto

This collection adds weight to an emerging argument that policies to make cities better are inextricably linked to an attempt to pacify and regulate crime and disorder. It provides discussions from a range of scholars examining policy connections that can be traced between social, urban and crime policy, and the wider processes of regeneration.
