

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910824070603321
Autore	Yeh Diana
Titolo	The happy Hsiungs : performing China and the struggle for modernity / / Diana Yeh
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Hong Kong, China : , : Hong Kong University Press, , 2014 ©2014
ISBN	988-8268-59-7 988-8268-58-9
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (225 p.)
Collana	RAS China in Shanghai series
Disciplina	895.185109
Soggetti	Autobiographical fiction - History and criticism Biography as a literary form American literature - 19th century - History and criticism American literature - 20th century - History and criticism
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Illustrations -- Acknowledgements -- Note on transliteration -- Prelude -- Chapter 1. Adrift in New China: learning, love and labour -- Chapter 2. 'Try something different. Something really Chinese' -- Chapter 3. 'The greatest success': the rise to global fame -- Chapter 4. China fashion and the politics of success -- Chapter 5. The kaleidoscope of China: authenticity, orientalism and discontents -- Chapter 6. The end to old Cathay? -- Chapter 7. 'Looking like an English household': performing class, family and home -- Chapter 8. Goddess, housewife, writer -- Chapter 9. Into the shadows -- Chapter 10. Global and contemporary revivals -- Afterword -- Glossary of names -- Notes -- Selected bibliography -- Index.
Sommario/riassunto	The Happy Hsiungs recovers the histories of two married Chinese writers who lived and worked in Britain from the 1930's onwards. Shih-I Hsiung shot to worldwide fame with his play "Lady Precious Stream," while Dymia Hsiung was the first Chinese woman to publish a fictional autobiography in English of her life in Britain.