

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910647236803321
Autore	Duberry Jerome
Titolo	Artificial intelligence and democracy : risks and promises of AI-mediated citizen-government relations / / Jerome Duberry
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Northampton : , : Edward Elgar Publishing, , 2022
ISBN	9781788977319 9781788977302
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (250 pages)
Disciplina	791.4372
Soggetti	Democracy - Data processing Artificial intelligence - Political aspects Representative government and representation Engineering
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Front Matter -- Copyright -- Contents -- Acknowledgments -- Introduction -- 1. AI to optimize the effectiveness and efficiency of public services -- 2. Policy entrepreneurs: Skills and resources to identify and exploit open policy windows -- 3. AI and information dissemination: Challenging citizens' access to relevant and reliable information -- 4. AI in public and private forms of surveillance: Challenging trust in the citizen-government relations -- 5. AI and the persuasion industry: Eroding the policy entrepreneurial resources and skills of citizens -- 6. AI and the weaponization of information: Hybrid threats against trust between citizens and democratic institutions -- 7. AI and civic tech: Engaging citizens in decision-making processes but not without risks -- Concluding remarks -- Index.
Sommario/riassunto	"This insightful book explores the citizen-government relation, as mediated through artificial intelligence (AI). Through a critical lens, Jérôme Duberry examines the role of AI in the relation and its implications for the quality of liberal democracy and the strength of civic capacity. In his analysis of AI, Duberry covers three key objectives: illustrating where and how AI is used in the context of citizen-government relations; highlighting the specific risks of using AI for citizen-government relations; and calling for a dedicated framework for assessing AI in these contexts. The author assesses the promises and pitfalls of AI at various levels of the citizen-government relation, including citizen participation, civic technology and political communication. Employing empirical findings from in-depth case studies and interviews with 40 experts in the field, the book stresses the burgeoning need for an innovative, human-centric management of AI in the citizen-government relation based on risk assessment that prioritises equality, freedom, human rights and popular sovereignty. Intervening at a key watershed in the history of digital politics, this timely book is key reading for researchers and scholars of political science and public policy, particularly those studying the digital landscape of contemporary policy and politics. It also offers significant empirical insights into the benefits and risks of AI for policymakers and civil servants working with new technologies"--

2. Record Nr.	UNINA9910824321703321
Autore	McGarry Aidan
Titolo	Who speaks for Roma? : political representation of a transnational minority community // Aidan McGarry
Pubbl/distr/stampa	New York, : Continuum, 2010
ISBN	1-5013-0187-X 1-282-71026-5 9786612710261 1-4411-3421-2
Edizione	[1st ed.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (217 p.)
Disciplina	323.1191/49704
Soggetti	Romanies - Europe, Eastern - Social conditions Romanies - Europe, Eastern - Politics and government Romanies - Europe, Eastern - Ethnic identity Political participation - Europe, Eastern Europe, Eastern Ethnic relations Europe, Eastern Politics and government
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia

Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Historical overview of Roma in Europe -- Political participation and representation of Roma -- Ambivalent discourse: rights-based theories on minorities -- Who speaks for Roma? organizing structures of representation in Romania -- Self-government and interest representation in Hungary: a wrong step in the right direction? -- Roma representation in the transnational political context -- Conclusion.
Sommario/riassunto	This timely work offers a clear and thorough assessment of how Roma make sure their voice is heard and addresses the difficulty in determining who legitimately represents this heterogeneous transnational minority community. The book argues that Roma are a transnational minority that, as such, requires transnational representation structures to complement domestic political representation structures. After explaining the relationship between representation and political participation within the context of ethnic mobilization, the book then evaluates representation structures and Roma participat