

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910824768803321
Titolo	Guide on measuring migration policy impacts in ASEAN // International Labour Organization
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Geneva, Switzerland : , : International Labour Organization, , 2016 ©2016
ISBN	92-2-129452-8
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (204 p.)
Disciplina	304.8095
Soggetti	Asia Emigration and immigration
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references.
Nota di contenuto	Cover; Copyright page; Preface; Table of contents; List of tables; Table 1.1 International migrants in 2010 (in millions and per cent); Table 1.2 ASEAN migration stocks, 2010; Table 2.1 Foreign workers - Goals and strategies of receiving countries; Table 2.2 Indicators of the impact of foreign worker programmes; Table 2.3 Logical framework analysis to evaluate foreign worker admissions; Table 2.4 Example of UK Migration Advisory Committee labour market indicators Table 2.5 Impact of improved economic migration screening (1999+) on employment outcomes at six months for select General Skilled Migration birthplace groups, Australia (1993-95 and 1999-2000) (per cent)Table 3.1 Measures to regulate recruitment; Table 3.2 Worker-paid migration costs (in US) - Bangladeshi workers in Kuwait, 2014; Table 3.3 Example of United States H-2A certification process; Table 3.4 Process and impact indicators related to regulating recruitment; Table 4.1 Working conditions: Policy objectives and regulatory measures Table 4.2 Process and impact indicators of working condition regulationsTable 4.3 Monthly wages of Thai workers, registered migrant workers, and unregistered migrant workers in Thailand; Table 4.4 Action on labour and welfare complaints received by Philippines Consulatein Dubai, first three quarters 2008-09; Table 4.5 Process indicator: Status of cases filed in 2008 at POEA as of 15 Oct. 2009; Table 6.1 Malaysia's population and labour force by nationality, 1995-

2013, various sources; Table 6.2 Number of documented foreign workers in Malaysia by nationality and sector, 1990-2013
Table 6.3 Number of expatriates in Malaysia, 2010 & 2014
Table 6.4 High-skilled foreign workers by sector, 2004-2014 (per cent); Table 6.5 Members of the Cabinet Committee on Foreign Workers (CCFWII); Table 6.6 Policy instruments and measures to manage foreign workers; Table 6.7 Activities in agriculture permitted to hire foreign workers and regulations guiding the number of workers that can be hired; Table 6.8 Approved sectors for employment of foreign nationals; Table 6.9 List of documents required for new applications for foreign workers; Table 6.10 Schedule of statutory payments
Table 6.11 Structure of foreign worker levy
Table 6.12 Advantages of the OS system over the current recruitment system; Table 6.13 Remittances by foreign labour, 2000 & 2013 (Ringgit, million); Table 6.14 Monthly minimum wage of foreign workers before and after minimum wage implementation in Peninsular Malaysia; Table 6.15 The macroeconomic impact of the minimum wage policy; List of figures; Figure 2.1 Admission of foreign workers admission: Goals and process indicators; Figure 2.2 Macroeconomic impacts of migrants: United States, 1996; Figure 3.1 Flowchart of the Korean EPS
Figure 6.1 Number of documented migrant workers

Sommario/riassunto

This publication offers policy-makers and administrators a guide for evaluating how labour migration policies work in practice, based on experiences in ASEAN and other parts of the world. It discusses labour market tests, the recruitment process, labour protection for migrant workers, the impacts of migration on destination and origin countries, and difficulties in evaluating labour migration and practical steps national authorities can take. A final section reviews the experience of Malaysia.
