

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910824894803321
Autore	Phillips David L (David Lawrence), <1959->
Titolo	Unsilencing the past : track two diplomacy and Turkish-Armenian reconciliation / / David L. Phillips
Pubbl/distr/stampa	New York, [New York] ; ; Oxford, [England] : , : Berghahn Books, , 2005 ©2005
ISBN	1-84545-007-8 1-78238-938-5
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (182 p.)
Disciplina	327.1/7/09475609561
Soggetti	Armenian question Reconciliation Conflict management - Turkey Track two diplomacy Turkey Ethnic relations
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Includes index.
Nota di contenuto	UNSILENCING THE PAST; CONTENTS; PREFACE; INTRODUCTION; 1. LESSONS FROM THE EASTERN MEDITERRANEAN; 2. FIRST CONTACT; 3. LEGISLATING HISTORY; 4. EMPATHY; 5. A HISTORIC STEP; 6. STORM OF CONTROVERSY; 7. LET A HUNDRED FLOWERS BLOOM; 8. TERROR STRIKES; 9. RECONCILIATION DILEMMA; 10. TAKING STOCK; 11. APPLICABILITY OF THE GENOCIDE CONVENTION; 12. WAR IN IRAQ; 13. AT THE BORDER; 14. FROM THEORY TO PRACTICE; EPILOGUE; APPENDIX; ACRONYMS; PERSONALITIES; NAMES INDEX
Sommario/riassunto	The Turkish-Armenian conflict has lasted for nearly a century and still continues in attenuated forms to poison the relationship between these two peoples. The author, Senior Fellow and Deputy Director of the Center for Preventive Action at the Council on Foreign Relations and previously advisor to the United Nations, undertook, as head of the Turkish-Armenian Reconciliation Committee, to bring the two sides together and to work with them towards a peaceful resolution of the enmity that had made any contact between them taboo. His lively account of the difficult negotiations makes fascinating reading; it shows that the newly developed “track-two diplomacy” is an effective tool for reconciling even intractable foes through fostering dialog, contact and cooperation.

---