

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910826040003321
Autore	Moglen Helene <1936-2018.>
Titolo	The Trauma of Gender [[electronic resource] ] : A Feminist Theory of the English Novel
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Berkeley, : University of California Press, 2001
ISBN	0-520-92583-1 1-59734-964-X
Edizione	[1st ed.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (228 p.)
Disciplina	823.009355 823/.509353
Soggetti	English fiction English fiction-- 18th century-- History and criticism Feminism and literature Feminism and literature - Great Britain - History - 18th century Feminist literary criticism Gender identity in literature Sex in literature Sex role in literature Women in literature English fiction - History and criticism - 18th century - Great Britain Feminism and literature - History - 18th century English fiction - History and criticism - Male authors Feminist fiction, English - History and criticism English Literature English Languages & Literatures
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di contenuto	Acknowledgments; Introduction: The Gender Politics of Narrative Modes; 1. Daniel Defoe and the Gendered Subject of Individualism; 2. Clarissa and the Pornographic Imagination; 3. (W)holes and Noses: The Indeterminacies of Tristram Shandy; 4. Horace Walpole and the

Nightmare of History; Conclusion: The Relation of Fiction and Theory;
Notes; Works Cited; Index

---

Sommario/riassunto

Helene Moglen offers a revisionary feminist argument about the origins, cultural function, and formal structure of the English novel. While most critics and historians have associated the novel's emergence and development with the burgeoning of capitalism and the rise of the middle classes, Moglen contends that the novel principally came into being in order to manage the social and psychological strains of the modern sex-gender system.

---