| Nota di contenuto       | Introduction : we have our wishes gratified -- A fair opportunity to strike a blow -- A worthy successor of Jackson -- Quite a brilliant little affair -- A thunderbolt from a cloudless sky -- Our reception is somewhat icy -- Wherever Ewell leads, we can follow -- No signs of sympathy with the rebels -- The people are all Union -- These people must have lived like lords -- No army ever fared better -- Enough to frighten us all to death -- Our army left a mark everywhere it went -- I want my requisition filled at once -- We did not come here for nothing |

-- The general was quite testy -- We had no idea of our destination -- Epilogue : the results are not all unsatisfactory.

Sommario/riassunto

"This is about the 1863 invasion of Pennsylvania through the eyes of the soldiers and civilians who experienced it"--
