Sommario/riassunto	In Rewriting Shangri-La: Migrations and Everyday Literacies among Tibetan Youth in McLeod Ganj, India , Heidi Swank examines differing histories of migration and exile through the lens of everyday literacies. The youth on whom this ethnography focuses live in a community that has long been romanticized by Tibetans and non-Tibetans alike, positioning these youth to see themselves as keepers of a modern day Shangri-la. Through this ethnography - based on a decade of research - Heidi Swank suggests that through seemingly mundane writings

(grocery lists, text messages, et cetera) these youth are shifting what Shangri-la means by renegotiating important aspects of life in this Tibetan community to better match their lived - not romanticized - experiences as exiles in rural India.
