Record Nr. UNINA9910828548203321 Early cinema today: the art of programming and live performance // Titolo edited by Martin Loiperdinger Pubbl/distr/stampa New Barnet, Herts, United Kingdom:,: John Libbey Publishing,, [2012] ©2012 ISBN 0-86196-902-2 Descrizione fisica 1 online resource (267 p.) Collana KINtop. Studies in early cinema;; volume 1 Soggetti Motion pictures - History Silent films - History and criticism Theater and society Performance art Lingua di pubblicazione Inglese Formato Materiale a stampa Livello bibliografico Monografia Note generali Description based upon print version of record. Includes bibliographical references and filmography. Nota di bibliografia Stimulating the audience: early cinema's short film programme format Nota di contenuto 1906-1912 / Andrea Haller and Martin Loiperdinger -- The best years of film history: a hundred years ago / Mariann Lewinsky -- 'From the botom of the sea': early film at the Oberhausen Festival / Tom Gunning -- From the past to the future : suffragettes--extremists of visibility in Berlin / Madeleine Bernstorff -- Silent films in their first decades-objects for research or for exhibition? / Eric de Kuyper -- Programming the local: Mitchell & Kenyon and the local film show / Vanessa Toulmin -- Back to the future: early cinema and late economy of attention: a interim report about Crazy cinematographe / Claude Bertemes and Nicole Dahlen -- The Crazy cinematographe, or the art of the impromtu spectator / Dick Tomasovic -- The art of crazy programming : documentation of Crazy cinematographe programmes, 2007 to 2010 / Claude Bertemes and Nicole Dahlen -- Programming and performing early cinema today: strategies and dispositifs / Frank Kessler. Sommario/riassunto Invented in the 1890's and premiered in Paris by the Lumiere brothers, the cinematograph along with Louis Le Prince's single-lens camera projector are considered by film historians to be the precursors to modern-day motion picture devices. These early movies were often shown in town halls, on fairgrounds, and in theaters, requiring special showmanship skills to effectively work the equipment and entertain onlookers. Within the last decade, film archives and film festivals have unearthed this lost art and have featured outstanding examples of the culture of early cinema reconfigured for today's audiences.