| Note generali | Includes index. |

Isotopes in Biochemistry; Foreword; Contents; Opening Address; Part I-Steroids; Metabolism of 14C-labelled steroids; High cholesterol content of human spleen; The biosynthesis of radioactive cholesterol by surviving liver slices; Studies with deuterium steroids; Part II-Hb-moglobin and Metabolic Derivatives; The biosynthetic mechanism of porphyrin formation; Studies on mammalian red cells; Preliminary investigations for a study of energy utilized by the surviving fowl erythrocyte in heme synthesis; Iron metabolism in pathological conditions

Part III-Use of Tracers in the Study of Biological Effects of RadiationThe modification of X-ray sensitivity by chemicals; Effect of X-rays on nucleic acid and protein synthesis in the Jensen rat sarcoma; Radiation dose in tracer experiments involving auto-radiography; Synthesis of deoxyribose nucleic acid and nuclear incorporation of ^{35}S shown by autoradiographs; Part IV-Nucleic Acids; The biosynthesis of pyrimidines in vitro; Studies with organic- and bio-synthetic nucleosides and nucleotides; The use of radiophosphorus in the study of the nucleic acids

Rate of synthesis and quantitative variations of the ribo- nucleic acid during the growth of a culture of *Polytomella coeca*Part V-Proteins and Amino-Acids; A method for the evaluation of the rate of protein synthesis in man; Turnover rates during formation of proteins and poly- nucleotides in regenerating tissues; Synthesis of phenylalanine and tyrosine in yeast; Part VI-Carbohydrate and Fatty Acid Metabolism; A study of acetone metabolism, using glycogen and serine as indicators, and the role of C1-compounds in metabolism; Asymmetric citric acid

Mode of formation of fatty acids from acetate and glucose, as studied in the mammary gland
