

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910838396103321
Autore	McCarthy Justin <1945->
Titolo	The Turk in America [[electronic resource] ] : creation of an enduring prejudice / / Justin McCarthy
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Salt Lake City, : University of Utah Press, c2010
ISBN	1-60781-966-X
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (511 p.)
Collana	Utah series in Turkish and Islamic studies
Disciplina	305.89/435073
Soggetti	Turks - Public opinion Armenian Genocide, 1915-1923 - Foreign public opinion, American Public opinion - United States Prejudices - United States Stereotypes (Social psychology) - United States Missionaries - Turkey - History Missions to Muslims - Turkey - History Turkey Foreign public opinion, American United States Relations Turkey Turkey Relations United States
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	The missionaries depart -- Turks and Muslims in early America -- The Greek rebellion -- The religion of the Turks -- Education -- The Bulgarian horrors -- Americans and Armenians -- World War I : the capstone of American prejudice -- The age of Near East relief -- The propaganda bureau : the British and the Turks -- Politics and the missionary establishment -- The last act for the missionary establishment -- Epilogue : the myth of the terrible Turk lives on.
Sommario/riassunto	"In The Turk in America, historian Justin McCarthy seeks to explain the historical basis for American prejudice towards Turks in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. The volume focuses on fraudulent characterizations of Turks, mostly stemming from an antipathy in Europe and America toward non-Christians, and especially Muslims. Spanning one hundred and fifty years, this history explores the misinformation largely responsible for the negative stereotypes of Turks during this period"--Publisher description.

---