

1. Record Nr.	UNISA990000211540203316
Autore	International workshop GD'94 : 1994
Titolo	Graph drawing : DIMACS International workshop, GD '94 : Princeton, New Jersey, USA, October 10-12, 1994 : proceedings / Roberto Tamassia, Ioannis G. Tollis (eds.)
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Berlin [etc.] : Springer-Verlag, copyr. 1995
ISBN	3-540-58950-3
Descrizione fisica	X, 469 p. : ill. ; 25 cm
Collana	Lecture notes in computer science ; 894
Disciplina	5113
Collocazione	001 LNCS (894)
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia

2. Record Nr.	UNINA9910842288003321
Autore	Macaulay Elizabeth R.
Titolo	Archaeological Ambassadors : A History of Archaeological Gifts in New York City // by Elizabeth R. Macaulay
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Cham : , : Springer International Publishing : , : Imprint : Palgrave Macmillan, , 2024
ISBN	9783031513916 3031513916
Edizione	[1st ed. 2024.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (279 pages)
Disciplina	659.299301
Soggetti	Culture - Study and teaching Art - History Cultural property United States - History Visual Culture Art History Cultural Heritage US History
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Chapter 1: Archaeological Ambassadors -- Chapter 2: Cleopatra's Needle: An Obelisk for a Rising Metropolis -- Chapter 3: Greek Bearing Gifts: The Marathon Stone, Casts, and Presidential Gifts -- Chapter 4. Columns as Cultural Capital: The Jordanian Practice of Gifting Archaeological Objects -- Chapter 5: An Exquisite Toy: The Temple of Dendur, a Gift for New York -- Chapter 6: Walks with Minerva and the Contemporary Lives of Archaeological Gifts. .
Sommario/riassunto	“A thorough and insightful analysis of the histories of four archaeological artifacts which entered the public space of New York City as diplomatic gifts. The objects are important in-and-of themselves as archaeological artifacts but Macaulay shows that they came to be intricately embedded in the city’s evolving identity as a powerhouse of international political and economic relations. Her refreshing approach takes into account the political framework of gift exchange both in originating countries and in the US as well as the legal framework of circulation of antiquities.” —Nassos Papalexandrou, University of Texas, Austin. This book investigates why nations with rich archaeological pasts like Egypt, Greece, and Jordan gave important antiquities—often unique, rare, and highly valued monuments—to New York City, New York Institutions, and the United States from 1879 to 1965. In addition to analyzing the givers’ motivations, the author examines why New Yorkers and Americans coveted such objects. The book argues that these gifted antiquities function as archaeological ambassadors and that the objects given were instruments of cultural diplomacy. These gifts sought to advance the goals of Egypt, Greece, and Jordan—all states that had rich cultural and archaeological heritages—with the United States, once an ascendent nation and then a global superpower, to strengthen cultural, economic, and political relations. Elizabeth R. Macaulay is an Associate Professor of Liberal Studies, Classics, Middle Eastern Studies, and Digital Humanities at The Graduate Center, The City University of New York. Her research examines the intersection of antiquity and modernity. She is the author or editor of six books, including Antiquity in Gotham: The Ancient Architecture of New York City (2021) and Classical New York: Discovering Greece and Rome in Gotham (2018). Educated at Cornell and Oxford Universities, she has served as a general trustee of the Archaeological Institute of America. She chairs the board of Smarhistory.org, the Center for Public Art History, where she is also a regular contributor and acquiring editor.

---